VOL. XXXVI., No. 4.

NEW YORK, July 27, 1889.

WHOLE No. 913.

D. APPLETON & CO.

WILL PUBLISH IMMEDIATELY:

I.

Christianity and Agnosticism.

A CONTROVERSY.

CONSISTING OF PAPERS BY

HENRY WACE, D.D., Prof. THOMAS H. HUXLEY, THE BISHOP OF PETERBOROUGH, W. H. MALLOCK, Mrs. HUMPHRY WARD.

The interest taken in the recent controversy between the Rev. Dr. Henry Wace, Principal of King's College, London, and Prof. Huxley, over the question of the true significance of agnosticism, and incidentally of the limits of natural knowledge, and the difficulty of getting at the complete discussion when scattered through different publications, have induced the publishers to bring the articles together in a single volume. To these have been added W. H. Mallock's article, "Cowardly Agnosticism," and "The New Reformation," by Mrs. Humphry Ward.

12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50 cents.

II.

The Light of Her Countenance.

A NOVEL.

By H. H. BOYSEN, author of "A Daughter of the Philistines," etc. APPLETONS' TOWN AND COUNTRY LIBRARY."

12mo, paper cover, 50 cents (also in cloth, 75 cents).

The scenes of Prof. Boyesen's new romance open in New York, but the action soon shifts to Italy. The characters are mainly American and English. The incidents are picturesque and the movement animated.

NOTES IN SEASON.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. will publish at once Prof. Max Müller's Gifford lecture, "Natural Religion," delivered at Glasgow last year.

PORTER & COATES have in preparation a new story by Mrs. Lucy C. Lillie, entitled "Esmer's Fortune." They have just issued in the Wyoming Series "Storm Mountain," by Edw. S. Ellis.

FUNK & WAGNALLS have just issued a practical little book, entitled "Emergency Notes," in which Dr. Glentworth R. Butler, tells in a clear, easily understood way what to do in the emergencies that are ever arising in this world of multiplied diseases and accidents.

A. C. ARMSTRONG & SON have by arrangements with Rev. C. H. Spurgeon and his English publisher issued the first volume of his new work entitled "The Salt Cellars," being proverbs and quaint sayings, together with homely notes thereon. It is alphabetical in arrangement and brings the proverbs down to the letter M.

D. LOTHROP COMPANY have just issued Margaret Sidney's new story, "Our Town," which promises to be a great treat to this author's many friends; Capt. Julius A. Palmer's nautical novel, "One Voyage and Its Consequences," the plot of which is laid partly in Boston, partly in the Mediterranean; and "Chrissy's Endeavor," by Pansy, a story of the development of religious feeling in a young society girl. They will issue next week Mrs. M. E. W. Sherwood's new book, "Sweet Brier;" and "A Colonial Boy, or, the old Sink Closet," a story of a real colonial boy in the days of hardship and daring, by Mrs. Nellie Blessing Eyster, of San Francisco.

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish immediately "Christianity and Agnosticism," a controversy consisting of the papers by Henry Wace, Prof. Huxley, W. H. Mallock, the Bishop of Peterborough, and Mrs. Humphry Ward, which have been appearing in different periodicals, and which many persons desiring to get at the complete discussion will be glad to have in one volume. The new issue in their Town and Country Library will be "The Light of Her Countenance," by H. H. Boyesen, a story which opens in New York and then shifts its scene to Italy, retaining its American and admitting chiefly English characters. The incidents are said to be picturesque and the style animated.

D. C. HEATH & Co. publish this week in their series of Monographs for Teachers "Rice's Science Teaching in the Schools." This is an address delivered before the American Society of Naturalists Dec., '87. Appended to the address is a report of a committee appointed by that body to develop a scheme of instruction in natural science to be recommended to the schools, and which embodies the principles of the address. Hence, their monograph expresses the opinions of a great body of working naturalists and advanced teachers of science. A second appendix gives the detailed application of these principles in a course of science teaching prescribed for the public schools of Middletown, Conn.

ROBERT CLARKE & Co. have in preparation a thoroughly revised edition of the "Revised Statutes of Ohio," edited by Florien Giauque. This edition will include all general laws in force January 1, 1889, arranged in their proper divisions and sections of the Revised Statutes; exhaustive references and notes from all decisions of the Supreme Court rendered since 1879; all the Constitutions, laws of the United States, etc., amended to date of publication; a complete list of and indexes to all local laws passed since the codification of 1879, and several tables of valuable information; a history of each section changed since the codification, showing when amended, etc., and a new and carefully prepared index to the entire work.

BUSINESS NOTES.

PUEBLO, COL.—James Rice, bookseller, has sold out.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); (Q. 4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tl. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights

Abbott, C. C. Days out of doors. N. Y., Appleton, 1889. 323 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Mr. Abbott's field of observation was again New Jersey, of whose wealth of living creatures he told us so many interesting things in "A naturalist's rambles about home." Again he describes the inhabitants of the fields and waters, finding new specimens and new traits of former specimens, with which to embellish his articles. He writes as only an enthusiastic lover of the animal kingdom can write, and displays a minute observation and patience that is quite marvellous. The twelve chapters are named from the twelve months, each embracing the characteristic features of the time of year. Some of the chapters have already been printed in Harper's Young People, The American, the Popular Science Monthly, and Garden and Forest.

Abbott, Lyman. Signs of promise: sermons preached in Plymouth pulpit, Brooklyn, 1887-9. N. Y., Fords, Howard & Hulbert, 1889. c. 3-301 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The first two sermons, "A great leader" and "Death, the interpreter," are tributes to Mr. Beecher, the Rev. Lyman Abbott's predecessor in Plymouth pulpit. The others have titles giving their subjects, viz.: The necessity of progress; The law of progress; Grapes of gall; The religion of humanity; The agnosticism of Paul; The dogmatism of Paul; The church's one foundation; The power of the keys; Salvation by growth; Salvation by grace; A power unto salvation; Christ's law of love; The peace of God; What is the Bible? The spiritual nature; Does God's mercy endure forever?

American coin: a novel; by the author of "Aristocracy." N. Y., Appleton, 1889. c. 213 p. D. (Appletons' town and country lib., no. 31.) cl., 75 c.; pap., 50 c.

A satire of American society on the same broad lines as "Aristocracy." The entire plot deals with the endeavors of two English noblemen, whose finances are in rather a low state, to marry two American heiresses, and the more than willingness of the two heiresses to barter their money for titles. The scene changes from London to Monterey, California.

American Economic Assoc. Report of the proceedings; with addresses by Dr. W. Pepper and Gen. F. A. Walker: 3d annual meeting, Phil., Dec. 26-29, 1888, by R. T. Ely, Secretary. Appleton's handbook of summer resorts. New ed. for 1889. N. Y., Appleton, 1889. il. and maps, D. pap., 50 c.

Arnold, Sir Edwin. In my lady's praise; being poems, old and new, written to the honor of Fanny, Lady Arnold, and now collected for her memory. [Bost., Roberts Bros.], 1889. 1+144 p. D. parch. pap., $1.25.

Almost the entire contents of this volume are gathered under the heading, "A casket of gems." The London Academy says: "The 'Casket of gems' is more literal than fanciful descriptions of poetical collections are wont to be, consisting entirely, indeed, of poems of precious stones, ranged in such order that the initial letters of their names build together, from beginning to end of the casket, Lady Arnold's name—Fanny Maria Adelaide—a device perhaps too suggestive of acrostics for dignity. Sir Edwin Arnold's method of treating his various gems gives him many opportunities for his particular felicities."

Aurelius, (pseud.) Optimism; or, the bright side of life. Chic., The Bright Side Pub. Co., 362 W. Madison St., 1889. c. 48 p. sq. D. (Optimistic lib., no. 1.) pap., 25 c.

Cameron, Mrs. H. Lovett. A lost wife: a novel. Phil., J: B. Lippincott Co., 1889. 4+288 p. S. (Lippincott's ser. of select novels, no. 98.) pap., 25 c.; hf. cl., 50 c.

Quixotic ideas led Freda Clifford to betroth herself to George Curtis, an elderly scholar and associate of her father's; at the time when she becomes resigned to a humdrum future, the advent of Captain Mark Thistleby materially changes affairs, and Freda commits a rash action that leads to a rupture of her engagement; this is followed by a stormy interview with Mark, a revelation, and separation; when they again meet the problem of the identity of the lost wife is solved.

Clayden, P. W. Rogers and his contemporaries. [Bost., Roberts Bros.], 1889. 2 v., 14+456; 7+466 p. D. cl., $5.

In "The early life of Samuel Rogers" (noticed in P. W. of April 7, 1888), Mr. Clayden covered the first forty years of the poet's life. As he lived to the good old age of 93, this left the events of over fifty years still to be narrated, and it is this story Mr. Clayden tells in the present work. The half century of Rogers' later life embraced one of the most eventful periods in English literary and political history, beginning in 1803 and ending in 1855. During all this time he was one of the most conspicuous figures in London society and his attractive house in St. James's Place, the constant resort of the most famous wits, statesmen, poets, artists, and literary men of Europe and America. Few literary biographies or memoirs of this period but offer some anecdote of Rogers. It is from these sources that the writer collected many of the anecdotes and reminiscences with which his volumes abound. Much new material relating to Rogers, in the way of letters, etc., was placed in his hands by Mr. Rogers' relatives.

Ellwanger, G. H. The garden's story; or, pleasures and trials of an amateur gardener. N. Y., Appleton, 1889. c. 7+345 p. S. cl., $1.25.

The author is a resident of Rochester, N. Y., and tells the story of his garden during the year 1888. Nearly all the plants referred to can be successfully grown in the rigorous climate of that lower lake region. The writer aims to stimulate a love for amateur gardening and has therefore presented a simple outline rather than a formal treatise and text-book of plants. There are also chapters on wild flowers and hardy ferns, and allusions are also made to the flowers and seasons in literature.

Evans, W. L. Memory training. N. Y., A. S. Barnes & Co., 1889. D. cl., $1.25.

Fane, Violet. The story of Helen Davenant. N. Y., Appleton, 1889. D. (Appleton's town and country lib.) cl., 75 c., pap., 50 c.

The scene alternates between England and Russia; the characters with one exception are given remarkable personalities; the plot involves intrigue, a peculiar marriage, and murder; psychical force is the instigator of the sensational crimes of the story as well as the means of revealing their perpetrator. A novel in which a contest for supremacy of will has some weird results.

Festetics, Kate Neely. From post to pillar. Phil., American Baptist Pub. Soc., 1889. 304 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A practical book discussing recent changes in business conditions and methods; salesmen's compensation, opportunities, and prospects; commercial travellers; retail merchants and salesmen; saleswomen; how to read character, and giving some important legal principles, points, and decisions governing sales.

Graeme, Elliott. Beethoven: a memoir; with introd. essay by Ferdinand Hiller. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1889. D. cl., $2.

Hayes, E. A., and Austin, G. W. A plain treatise on the law of marriage and divorce. Buffalo, F. S. Fries, Jr., 1889. c. 40+8 p. D. pap.

Hector, Mrs. Annie F. ["Mrs. Alexander," pseud.] A crooked path: a novel. N. Y., H. Holt & Co., 1889. 3+524 p. S. (Leisure hour ser., no. 227.) cl., $1; pap., 35 c.

The heroine, knowing her miserly uncle had intended making a will in her favor, takes "a crooked path" and hides a will made years before. Her sole object is to help her mother and her brother's children. After a time, under peculiar circumstances, she confesses what she has done to the man who should have inherited. Several well-drawn characters are introduced in this story of life in London, showing the smooth and the seamy side of several lives, with their complicated motives, aims, and ambitions. The heroine is the strong, whole-souled woman Mrs. Alexander draws so well.

Mr. Herndon was for twenty years Mr. Lincoln's friend and law partner. This long personal association gave him special facilities in obtaining materials for these volumes. He claims that he possesses the most valuable Lincolniana in existence. The object of this work is to deal with Mr. Lincoln individually and domestically; as lawyer, as citizen, as statesman. The historic events of his time are only dealt with as they affected him personally—his figure being kept in sight throughout. Mr. Herndon has certainly made a remarkable book, and one that will always be considered one of the most valuable among the many lives of Lincoln. He neither idealizes his hero nor drags him in the dust. He simply tells what appears to be the exact truth about him, which in no way detracts from Lincoln's greatness. The facts he tells about Lincoln's birth, his early life, his marriage and married life are all new—and so startling that one is obliged to make an entirely new study of Lincoln's character after reading them.

An attempt to give a realistic sketch of life in the western Sudan. It is the outcome of considerable experience in the Dark Continent, especially based on what the author has seen and heard when travelling in the northern part of Africa. The author has also made the forty-seven illustrations which he assures his readers are accurate representations of landscapes, architecture, implements, costumes, and human types. The story is told in autobiographical form. The horrors of slave-life would seem impossible in a world containing any civilized country. The writer is author of "The Kilimanjaro expedition," etc.

These fresh and fragrant sketches first appeared in the London Daily News. The varying aspects of English landscape, its foliage, its shrubbery, the birds and animals which live in it, are written about with ease and sympathy. The writer has not confined his observation to the leafy season. One of his best chapters treats of the "wintry shore." The illustrations are pretty and the book is handsomely printed.

N. Y., J. Wiley & Sons, 1889. c. '88. 12+302 p. pl. O. cl., $4.

This work has just been adopted as a text-book at the Military Academy at West Point. Starting out with the general principles of army organizations and discipline it takes up the subject of the tactical use of the different arms of the service, singly and combined. While not entering into "drill tactics" proper, it explains the present methods of handling troops in battle, march, camp, reconnoissance, scrutiny, contact, etc., and shows how these methods have grown out from the experience gained in war. The treatment of logistics and strategy singly, and in their relation to each other and to tactics, is logical, clear, and free from dogmatism and confusing terms and definitions. The work is fully up to date in all respects.

The old, old story of an inventor sacrificing his family and all his means to carry on his unprofitable experiments. The scene is Normandy. His daughter Antoinette, a strong, sensible woman, is weak when called upon to oppose her father, and gives up her love and her fortune to further his ends. A family feud of long standing furnishes the plot. The last of the race of the Carvajans finally wins a lawsuit for the Clairfontes and the curtain drops on renewed prosperity.

Peabody, Cecil H. Thermo-dynamics of the steam-engine and other heat-engines. N. Y., J. Wiley & Sons, 1889. c. 18+470 p. O. cl., $5.

Designed to give instruction to students in technical schools in the methods and results of the application of thermodynamics to engineering. The feature in which the book differs most from similar works is in the treatment of the steam-engine. It has been deemed advisable to avoid all approximate theories based on the assumption of adiabatic changes of steam in an engine cylinder, and instead to make a systematic study of steam-engine tests, with the view of finding what is actually known on the subject, and how future investigations and improvements may be made. For this purpose a large number of tests have been collected, arranged, and compared. Special attention is given to the investigations of the action of steam in the cylinder of an engine, considerable space being given to Hirn's researches and to experiments that provide the basis of them. Directions are given for testing engines, and for designing simple and compound engines.

Pennell, Jos. and Eliz. Robins. Our journey to the Hebrides. N. Y., Harper, 1889. c. 16+225 p. il. D. cl., $1.75.

Most of "Our journey to the Hebrides" originally appeared in Harper's Magazine. The writers say they have been criticised for dwelling too much upon the misery of the inhabitants of the places visited. They were not blind to the beauty, the sternness, the wildness of the country; but the sadness and sorrows of its down-trodden, semi-starved people left a more lasting impression than the wonder and beauty of their land. They do not attempt to give reasons for the economic problems. They merely describe. The illustrations are pretty and the book is tastefully bound in blue cloth ornamented with a Scotch thistle.

The battle of the Big Hole was fought on the 9th of August, 1877, between the Nez Percés Indians under their Chief Joseph and the Seventh United States Infantry reinforced by citizens of Montana, under command of Col. Gibbon. A modest but enduring shaft of solid granite has been erected by the United States to commemorate the seventeen officers and one hundred and thirty-eight men who fell upon this hotly contested field. The account of the battle is written with spirit by one who knows every foot of the ground.

Fishin' Jimmy is introduced as an old man teaching two young boys his favorite art. With his many practical lessons he interweaves lessons of simple faith, of unwearied patience, of self-denial and cheerful endurance, which, strangely enough, he claims to have learned from his favorite sport. To him the fisherman's art is a whole system of morality, a guide for every-day life, an education and a gospel to make men, women, and children happy, useful, and good. The publishers have made a dainty book.

The last of the Van Slacks, a handsome rich young man of twenty-seven, having exhausted many methods of passing summer vacations, concludes to buy The Clarion, a prohibitionist paper published in a New England seaport town. The first editorials opposed to prohibition upset the town and his paper is finally raided and suppressed. The romances interwoven do not run smooth. A make-believe prohibition giant and a make-believe German baron play important parts. The plot is involved and is worked out by two murders.

Warner, C: Dudley. Studies in the south and west; with comments on Canada. N. Y., Harper, 1889. c. 4+484 p. D. hf. leath., $1.75.

These studies have all appeared in Harper's Magazine except "Society in the New South," which was published in the New Princeton Review. Mr. Warner's object was not to present a comprehensive account of the country South and West, but to note certain representative developments, tendencies, and dispositions, the communication of which would lead to a better understanding between different sections. The colored people of the South and the Indians of the West receive special attention. The book is full of hard facts, keen observation, shrewd analysis, and delightful descriptions of scenery.

Westall, W: Birch Dene: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1889. 3-373 p. D. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., new ser., no. 651.) pap., 45 c.

Birch Dene is an English cotton-spinning district during the first years of this century. The hero is apprenticed to learn the trade, and the story gives a realistic representation of the cruelty to which apprentices had to submit in those dark days. Stealing and even insubordination were punished with death. There is a mystery about the hero's father which is well worked out. His mother takes a cloak to save him from freezing, and is condemned to death. He is apprenticed first to a second-hand bookseller, but upon his death drifts to Birch Dene, where he bravely works out a brilliant career.

Wicks, W: S. Log-cabins; how to build and furnish them. N. Y., Forest and Stream Pub. Co., 1889. c. 3-44 p. 18 pl. obl. T. hf. cl., $1.50.

The N. Y. Sun says that in this work Mr. William S. Wicks has contributed in a measure to revive what promised soon to become a lost art. He has also done more than that by furnishing for the benefit of summer excursionists descriptions, accompanied by illustrations, of several of the many picturesque lodges, of logs and rustic work, which have of late years sprung up so rapidly in the Adirondacks and other forest-clad regions. It is true that some of these are far too elegant in appearance and elaborate in design to accord with their savage surroundings; but Mr. Wicks caters to all tastes, and the millionaire or the man of modest means will find in his book no lack of useful hints. Lovers of woodcraft are indebted to him for an especially agreeable and useful little volume.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JULY 27, 1889.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

CASPAR'S DIRECTORY.

CASPAR'S DIRECTORY is at last ready. We fear that the trade has become weary of announcements of every kind concerning this work; yet at the risk even of becoming more tiresome we again take occasion to call their attention to this remarkable work. Certainly no other trade can boast of a more comprehensive directory than this. It has been objected that Mr. Caspar has attempted too much and has elaborated his subject beyond the proper limits of a trade directory. However plausible such an objection may seem at first sight, it remains a fact that the office of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY (no doubt our confrères have the same experience) is besieged almost daily for just such information as this work covers. As to the first part, the alphabetical list of firms, there can be no question that it is the most comprehensive yet undertaken. The same may be said of the fourth part, the geographical classification, though this might possibly have been made more useful had the publishers and the dealers been separated in the larger cities. Yet this is a matter that every one who uses the book may correct in a few hours by checking off one or the other branch. As for the fifth part in which the trade branches in the directory are arranged under the various departments, it is simply unique, and worth alone the price of the book to the manufacturer. Indeed, there are few pages in all the 1434 which make up this book that ought to be considered superfluous by any live man in any of the trades represented in the Directory.

As to its completeness, then, there is little doubt. The question then arises as to its accuracy. Concerning that we can speak only from our own experience. Having referred to the book for about four months, we have as yet discovered only four serious errors, chiefly in the spelling of firm names. It is simply impossible to produce an absolutely correct work of this kind for the first time or after many times. Every firm represented in the book received at least one circular asking for particulars; many actually received three or four circulars at different intervals. Through carelessness or indifference many never answered. In those cases the most reliable information obtainable was used. As the material grew, revision upon revision was made up to the time of going to press, and yet, now that the work is done, errors will be found here and there of greater or less importance. Unfortunately a work of this kind is invariably judged by its minor defects. The general correctness and completeness is always lost sight of. It is for the latter, however, that we recommend the work, and for this we hope it will receive the support it so richly deserves. Whatever other directory one may now use this one should find a place with it because it supplements in many ways all its predecessors. The book and stationery trades have long been clamoring for a work of this kind; let them now support the enterprising endeavor that has been made to supply their want. Whatever blemishes it may have can easily be effaced by the coöperation of those who use it constantly.

THE D. LOTHROP COMPANY'S BOOKS AT THE PARIS EXHIBITION.

CONCERNING D. Lothrop Company's books at the Paris Exhibition, a correspondent of the Journal of Useful Inventions writes: "While it is true that American painters find a warm recognition in European art circles, and an echoed appreciation at home, it is not in painting or sculpture that American art has had its most distinguished expression. In the one field of book and magazine illustration there has been eminent achievement, and in both creative design and interpretative engraving and painting, the Old World looks expectantly to the New. The advance is even dignified by the name of the 'American School' of illustration and engraving.

"The student and connoisseur of art progress will find in the D. Lothrop Company's exhibit interesting examples of this notable movement. In turning through the bound volumes of their famous magazine, Wide Awake, one is impressed with the broad range of methods employed to secure the most excellent results from thoroughly differing subjects.

"Foremost are the remarkable renderings by wood-engravings of monotone drawings in water-color and oil by leading illustrators and painters, Chase, Sandham, Church, Smedley, Garrett, and others. Advantage is taken of the latest advances in athochromatic photography, and in half-tone engraving by the recently invented photo-etching processes of Ives and of Kurtz, in the enterprising reproductions of old miniatures and paintings by Stuart and others.

"Then, too, there are the exquisitely delicate etchings of line drawings by Garrett and other masters of graceful technique. Photogravure in the sensitive gelatine methods, and even artistic work by lithography is from time to time employed by this enterprising magazine.

"'Ideal Poems' and 'Idyls and Pastorals' include a fine series of full-page wood-engravings of the designs of well-known men, Lungren, Hovenden, and others. Edmund Clarence Stedman's whole poem of the 'Star Bearer' is enriched with a fine engraving after Howard Pyle, printed by hand from the original wood on Japanese silk paper. The charming little volume about that unique artist, Warwick Brookes, has some twenty-five most tender and sympathetic half-tone photo-etchings from pencil drawings.

"Photogravure of a perfected gelatine type that almost rivals the famous Goupil process in fidelity and richness is employed with great distinctness in the édition de luxe folios of Tennyson's 'Holy Grail' and in 'Idyls and Pastorals.' In 'Ballads About Authors' the various reproductive processes are judiciously employed with admirable results."

THE BOOK TRADE IN THE "DIAMOND FIELD."

ON the 13th inst., and at Chicago, was played one of the biggest games of baseball the book trade ever had the honor of being connected with. On the evening of the 11th Henry Kimball, H. Dover, Thos. R. Buchan, J. Parker White, Eugene Hardy, W. B. Walker, J. H. May, Chas. E. Brown, A. E. Turner, Wm. Jacchow, H. N. Reed, Edward C. Swayne, Jno. E. Potter, Jr., David Risley, Jr., T. B. McCauley, and A. K. Burke met at the Palmer House to discuss the subject, Mr. Reed acting as chairman. Mr. H. Kimball was called upon to name the club and chose the name D-Laids, which was unanimously adopted. Edward C. Swayne was elected manager, John B. May, captain, and F. H. Newcombe, official scorer. The club was to meet an impromptu Chicago club—Chicago Booklets—of which E. Lawson, of C. M. Barnes, was manager, and E. J. George, of S. A. Maxwell & Co., captain, at the Northwestern Ball Park. Game was called at 3:15 and the following nines set to work:

D-LAIDS.	CHICAGO BOOKLETS.
Herrick, r. f.	George, c.
Wright, 3d b.	Lawson, 1st b.
Bloch, p.	Buck, p.
Knox, 1st b.	Donohue, 2d b.
May, 2d b.	Silverman, c. f.
Dover, c.	Rosenblatt, 3d b.
Styles, s. s.	Carey, l. f.
Turner, p.	Cannon, s. s.
Potter, c. f.	Thompson, s. s.
Jacchow, l. f.	Furlong, r. f.
Umpire—H. H. Reed.

The scorers were Western Stationer and F. H. Newcombe.

The score by innings was:

D-Laids..... 0 0 1 1 2 0 0 0—4
Chicago Booklets..... 9 1 0 1 5 3 3 5—27

The play of both the clubs was simply dazzling. The audience was composed of the representatives on the road of almost every book and stationery firm in the country and the élite of Chicago's book trade. The best feeling prevailed, and all felt happy at the success of their first experiment.

OBITUARY.

JOHN P. MORTON.

RIPE in years, distinguished and beloved, and with all the honors which make life worth living, another prominent member of the book trade has passed away. Shortly after noon on the 19th inst., Mr. John P. Morton, head of the publishing house of John P. Morton & Co., of Louisville, Ky., died peacefully, surrounded by his immediate family and relatives. Mr. Morton's illness was a long one, and a complication of diseases was too much for the once strong and sturdy constitution, weakened by sickness and the eighty-two years of active and eventful life. Until a few years ago Mr. Morton was possessed of the best physical health and assumed an active part in the management of his immense business interests. For two or three years, however, his health has been gradually failing and the infirmities of old age have been creeping upon him.

Mr. Morton was born in March, 1807, at Lexington, Ky., where his father was a prominent merchant. He was educated at Lancasterian school, at Lexington, and at the age of sixteen was pursuing his studies at Transylvania University. Then his father made a disastrous business failure, and young Morton was called home and thrown on his own resources. The time spent at college had given him a taste for literary pursuits, and he decided to go into a bookstore, as the most suitable and congenial work, and secured a position as clerk in a Lexington establishment. There he applied himself to the business, and when Mr. W. W. Worsely started a bookstore in Louisville, young Morton was engaged, and he was given the active management of the entire concern.

A few years later the firm commenced publishing books, and soon the business was carried on under the firm-name of Morton & Smith. The firm then published a daily newspaper called the Focus, which was merged with the Louisville Journal into the Focus-Journal and the wit and scholar George D. Prentice was the editor. This paper might be called the founder and parent of the present Louisville Courier-Journal. The firm of Morton & Smith went into the book publishing business on a very extensive scale and at once jumped into popularity and prominence, especially in the South. The firm was the rival of the great New York and Cincinnati publishers of that day and made a specialty of school-books. Works from the Morton & Smith presses were used extensively throughout the South fifty years ago. As the years passed the business grew and prospered, extensions were made, and the firm was known as one of the leading houses in the Union. Then Morton & Griswold succeeded Morton & Smith, and under that name the firm was known during the twenty years preceding 1858. From that time to the present the firm has been John P. Morton & Co., and up to the present the concern has been known as one of the leading and most progressive publishing houses in the country. Mr. Morton always had the active management of his business and directed all its details until within the past few years, when he gave way to his nephews and business partners, Messrs. Alex. and Howard M. Griswold.

With his great aptitude for business in a business career of more than sixty years of unbroken prosperity, Mr. Morton amassed a large fortune. He was interested in railroad and other enterprises and possessed orange groves and town property in Florida, in the development and progress of which State he always took the keenest interest. Mr. Morton was of a very charitable disposition, and never was a deserving call made upon him in vain, and his gifts to churches, charity, and charitable institutions were many. He was a man of a most modest and retiring disposition, and did not like praise for his deeds of charity. A few years ago he cleared a large sum of money in Short Line bonds, and out of this investment he gave $100,000 for the founding of an Episcopal home for females and infirmary for the sick, and that immense structure now stands a perpetual monument to his memory on Morton Avenue in the eastern part of the city. The institution was, in honor of Mr. Morton, called the Morton Memorial Infirmary, but in accordance with his ideas and at his request the name was changed, and it is now simply the Church Home. All his life Mr. Morton has been a devout Episcopalian, and was one of the first and oldest members of Christ Church. Some years ago he was one of the vestrymen for that congregation, but lately he had taken no active part in the management of the church's affairs, although his friendship and interest remained unabated.

In spite of large donations to churches and charities which would have seriously impaired almost any other man's means, Mr. Morton leaves an estate estimated at from $750,000 to $1,000,000. His wife was Miss Harriet Griswold. His brother is Henry C. Morton, and his sister is Mrs. M. M. Griswold. He was related to David Morton, and was connected with the Nortons, Heises, and some of the most prominent and wealthy families in Kentucky.

The funeral services were held at Christ Church on Saturday, July 20, and were conducted by the rector, the Rev. Charles E. Craik. The interment was in Cave Hill Cemetery, and was private. The remains were borne to their last resting-place by eight of the deceased gentleman's nephews, and the honorary pall-bearers were Mr. Morton's most intimate friends and closest business associates.

OSMYN BREWSTER.

OSMYN BREWSTER, formerly of the widely-known publishing firm of Crocker & Brewster, of Boston, died at his home in that city on Monday, July 15. On July 19, 1887, Uriel Crocker died at his summer residence in Cohasset, Mass. In our issue for July 23, 1887, we gave the history of the long and successful partnership of the two men. The old firm of Crocker & Brewster is hardly remembered by the active publishers and printers of to-day, but in their day they were among the richest and most respected houses in the then flourishing publishing and bookselling business. Mr. Brewster was born in 1797 at Worthington, Mass., and would therefore have been ninety-two years old had he lived until August 2. Mr. Crocker had also celebrated his ninetieth birthday before he died. Mr. Brewster went to Boston in his fifteenth year, and was apprenticed to Samuel T. Armstrong, of 50 Cornhill (now 173 and 175 Washington Street). Here he met Uriel Crocker, who had begun his apprenticeship only two months before. In those days a boy had to serve seven years to learn the printer's trade, but when his time was up he was expected to know everything connected with the art—a very different experience from that of the modern printer's devil. In 1818, four years before Boston was old enough to rank among cities, Mr. Armstrong took his two young apprentices into partnership with him. A few years later Mr. Armstrong began to publish "Scott's Family Bible" in six large octavo volumes, the largest work that had then been stereotyped in America. He made so great a success of his courageous undertaking that in 1825 he retired with what in those days represented a fortune, leaving his business to his young associates under the name of Crocker & Brewster, an imprint which was chiefly seen on educational and religious books. Mr. Crocker became the travelling member of the firm and directed the printing office, and Mr. Brewster attended chiefly to the bookselling business. Each in this division followed his special talent and inclination, and steady growth and prosperity were the results. Crocker & Brewster was probably the only bookselling or publishing firm in Boston that lived through the crises of 1837 and 1857. For forty years the sign of Crocker & Brewster hung over the same door which the members of the firm had entered as apprentices, and which had the historical interest of having served in earlier days as the entrance to Paul Revere's shop; then, being unable to make satisfactory arrangements with the widow of Mr. Armstrong, they were obliged to move to the next house. Here they continued until 1876, when they retired from active business, selling all their valuable plates and stock to H. O. Houghton & Co. A branch store, established for several years in New York, had long before been sold to Daniel A. Appleton, and from this little plant grew the great publishing house of D. Appleton & Co. Both partners had learned in the old school of merchants that the only way in which money may be made in the ordinary book business is by hard work, careful publishing and buying, strict attention to business, close economy, and saving. In this way they survived panics, resisted temptations to sell at cost, and steered clear of many evils that have now crept not into the book trade alone, but into trade in general. The partners were lifelong friends as well as business associates. The fiftieth and seventy-fifth anniversaries of their connection in business were appropriately celebrated in 1868 and 1886 in Mr. Crocker's home, and on both occasions the leading citizens of Boston tendered their cordial congratulations. In financial and mercantile developments Mr. Brewster was an active factor, and in his Legislative labors he was an earnest, upright advocate of proper municipal and commonwealth actions. His public life, though unassuming, was yet conspicuous by fidelity to every duty and by practical efforts in behalf of useful measures. In 1848, 1849, 1850, 1852, and 1856 he was in the Massachusetts House of Representatives, in 1848 and 1853 he was in the State Senate, and in the latter year he was also a member of the convention for revising the constitution of the commonwealth. In 1856, 1857, and 1858 Mr. Brewster was an efficient member of the Board of Aldermen, and he also served in the directorship of public institutions. In 1861 Mr. Brewster, Mr. Crocker, ex-Mayor Lincoln, and others, all members of the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanic Association, conceived the idea of establishing a savings bank. An act of incorporation was obtained under the name of the Franklin Savings Bank of the City of Boston, and the bank opened its doors for business in July of that year. Meanwhile, Mr. Brewster had been elected its first President and continued in that capacity until 1887, when he declined a reelection. The officers being unwilling that his connection with the institution should cease, chose him as its first Vice-President, which position he held at his decease. Appropriate resolutions were also adopted at the time expressive of high regard, and Mr. Brewster was requested to sit for an oil painting, which now adorns the banking-room on Boylston Street. For more than a quarter of a century he was Treasurer of the Massachusetts Charitable Association.

In 1867 Dartmouth College conferred upon Mr. Brewster the degree of A.M. Mr. Brewster was also active in church work and was connected with the Old South Church. About three months ago Mr. Brewster fell and broke two ribs, and it was feared this would be his final illness. But he recovered in a marvellously short time and was able to attend a meeting of the directors of the National Revere Bank on the 2d of this month. Mr. Brewster was a kindly, genial man, who enjoyed life and liked to see others do so also. The funeral services were held at his residence at 32 Hancock Street, Boston, on Thursday, July 24. Mr. Brewster leaves seven children, twenty-two grandchildren, and seven great-grandchildren.

JAMES RIKER, author of "Annals of Newtown, L. I.," and the "History of Harlem, N. Y.," died at his residence in Waverly, N. Y., July 3. He was born in New York City, May 11, 1822. He was Vice-Principal in a Harlem public school from 1849 to 1855, and after that became connected with the American Home Missionary Society.

ALEXANDER JOHNSTON, Professor of Political Economy in Princeton College, died at his home at Princeton, N. J., on the 20th inst. He was born on April 29, 1849, and was graduated at Rutgers College in 1870. He was admitted to the bar at New Brunswick, N. J., 1876, and taught in the Rutgers College Grammar School until 1879, when he became the Principal of the Norwalk Latin School. He was appointed Professor of Jurisprudence and Political Economy in Princeton College in 1883, and held that post at the time of his death. He was a contributor to the Encyclopædia Britannica, and also published a "History of American Politics," "The Genesis of a New England State," "Representative American Orations," a "History of the United States for Schools," and a "History of Connecticut."

MR. FRANZ THIMM, of Brook Street, New Bond Street, London, died July 6. A Prussian by birth, Mr. Thimm served his apprenticeship with Ascher & Co., of Berlin, but went to London at the age of nineteen, and after a few years established himself as a foreign bookseller and publisher. He wrote a sketch of "The Literature of Germany from its Earliest Period to the Present Time," and a useful volume of "Shaksperiana from 1564 to 1871," an account of the Shakspearian literature of England, France, Germany, and other European countries during three centuries, with bibliographical introductions. Mr. Thimm was also an amateur painter, and had more than once contributed to the exhibition of the Royal Academy. Mr. Thimm retired from business last year, and was succeeded by one of his sons.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

PARIS LITERARY CONGRESS.

"THE principal business transacted at the Literary Congress at Paris, over which M. Jules Simon presided," says the London Athenæum of June 29, "has been the passing of the following resolutions, which it is to be hoped may be imported into the Convention of Berne, to which nearly every civilized nation, the United States of America excepted, adhered, and has legislated accordingly: 1. As an author's title to his work includes the sole right to translate it, or to authorize its translation, the author, his successors, and assigns enjoy the right of translation during the term of copyright, even though they may not have the sole right to reproduce the work in its original form. 2. There is no reason for an author notifying in any way that he reserves the right of translation. 3. There is no ground for limiting the period during which the author of a book or his representatives may translate it."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

COLONEL DONN PIATT has retired from the editorship of Belford's Magazine.

THE August Century—the midsummer holiday number—will contain, besides the first chapters of Joel Chandler Harris' new serial, two short stories, "The Haunted House in Royal Street," by George W. Cable, and "A Positive Romance," by Edward Bellamy, author of "Looking Backward."

Scribner's Magazine will celebrate Tennyson's eightieth birthday by the publication in the August number of an excellent portrait of the poet. Professor T. R. Lounsbury, of Yale, one of the most brilliant and learned of American scholars, has prepared for the same number a paper on Tennyson.

THE August Atlantic will be specially notable for a five-page poem by Mr. Lowell. It is said to be not only the longest poem Mr. Lowell has written for years, but the strongest and most felicitous in thought and expression. Its title, "How I Consulted the Oracle of the Goldfishes," suggests something of the nature and charm of the poem.

THE Treasure Trove magazine, published by E. L. Kellogg & Co., of New York, has secured a number of prize stories from its boy and girl subscribers, which are now being issued. Two hundred dollars and seventy dollars' worth of books were distributed as prizes. The prize-winners are from all parts of the country, and their stories, the publishers claim, are of very pleasing variety; indicating a remarkable degree and versatility of talent.

Waterman's Journal is the title of an original and refreshing journalistic enterprise started by A. A. Watermann & Co., 36 Bromfield Street, Boston. It discusses current events, social problems, and books, in a thoroughly philosophic and critical spirit, evincing an independence of thought and unconventionality of expression that promise a lively future for the journal. The paper is handsomely printed on excellent paper, and we are glad to see that it promises to be a weekly after Oct. 3, next.

Santa Claus, the long-heralded weekly paper for young people, will make its first appearance in October in Philadelphia. A long list of eminent writers has already been secured, and the projectors will aim to make a high-class, original journal of a kind quite new in this country. Topics of the day will be discussed in a manner to interest the young; industrial pursuits will be made prominent, and there will be serials on travel and sports to instruct as well as to amuse the minds of the readers of the paper.

THE English socialist magazine, To-Day, has changed its title with the July number, and will henceforth be known as the International Review. It will be edited by Mr. H. M. Hyndman, and be issued at sixpence. The new number contains articles by Annie Besant, Dr. Paul Brousse, Adolphe Smith, and the editor. Amongst those who have promised to contribute to the International Review are Prince Krapotkine, Mr. Walter Crane, the Rev. Stewart Headlam, Mr. H. S. Salt, and Mr. E. Belfort Bax.

LOUISE IMOGEN GUINEY, a famous oarswoman, writes on "Rowing" in the August Wide Awake, and the same number has another vacation article about making "Wild-Flower Books" for holiday gift-giving. Olive Risley Seward, in the same issue, tells a real fairy tale of how she and Secretary Seward in one short day saw sights and visited with Laboulaye, and were with Thiers in the first hours of his Presidency; and Andrew Lang relates his experience "Fishing in Tweed and Yarrow" humorously and practically.

PERSONAL NOTES.

CAPTAIN DANIEL APPLETON, the head of the business department of D. Appleton & Co., was elected on the 19th to succeed Emmons Clark as Colonel of the Seventh Regiment N. G. S. N. Y. Having such a captain what could the Seventh do but place him at its head? We salute the Colonel and felicitate him upon the promotion.

At the Decennial Reunion of the Yale Class of '79, at New Haven, the class song, which was sung to the air of "Amici," was written by Mr. Frederick A. Stokes, of the publishing firm of Frederick A. Stokes & Brother. Mr. Horace A. Stokes, of the same firm, was graduated in the Yale Class of '89, and will enter into active business next autumn, after a summer in Europe.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MR. T. ADOLPHUS TROLLOPE has finished another series of "Reminiscences," which he will publish in the autumn.

ROBERT BROWNING is said to have "a new volume of poems in his desk." The London Academy, which has made this discovery, hopes "that the collection may appear as the seventeenth of the new and complete edition of Browning's Poetical Works."

ZOLA's newest novel, "La Bête Humaine," contains all the personal experience of life on the railway which the author was so busy in acquiring last winter when he rode on express engines, interviewed traffic managers, travelled with guards, and hobnobbed with porters and signalmen.

A LIFE of the late Duke de Morny by the present Duke will be issued in Paris in the autumn. It will relate chiefly to the man's public career. Events connected with the coup d'état and those following the Crimean war will be traced in the light of documentary evidence.

Some of de Morny's personal views of men and affairs will be given.

MRS. FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT, who has just arrived in London, has undertaken, on behalf of the Associated Literary Press, to edit a "Youths' Department," which will appear simultaneously in several of the larger newspapers in England and America. Among the early contributors will be Mr. Bret Harte, Mr. Lang, Lord Wolseley, and Sir Robert Ball.

A CORRESPONDENT writes to The Critic to say that Miss Winnifred Jennings, youngest daughter of Capt. G. S. Jennings, U. S. A., retired, is the "George Truman Kercheval," whose book, "Lorin Mooruck, and other Indian stories," recently published by J. Stilman Smith, Boston, has been so warmly commended by Herbert Welsh, Edward Everett Hale, and Bishop H. B. Whipple.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

THE PROPOSED RUSKIN BIBLIOGRAPHY.—The bibliography of Mr. Ruskin's works to which we referred in our last issue is to take the form of a handsome quarto volume, and will be published by subscription. The entire series of Mr. Ruskin's published writings will be systematically arranged and carefully collated, and it is also proposed to add a full list of Ruskiniana. The bibliography will be arranged in the following manner: Original editions; works edited or prefaced by Mr. Ruskin; his contributions to periodical literature, including poems, letters to the press, essays, etc.; and American reprints and pirated editions. Under the title of "Ruskiniana" a full list of volumes of biography and criticism, reviews, estimates, etc., and published portraits of Professor Ruskin will be added. The work ought to prove useful not only to the collector of rare editions, but also to the student of Ruskin's writings.

Catalogues of New and Second-hand Books.—David G. Francis, 17 Astor Place, N. Y., new and old books. (No. 92, 32 p., 8°).—Damascène Morgand, Paris, No. 25 of his valuable catalogue of Antiquarian books. (112 p., 8°).—Frederick Warne & Co., new catalogue for 1889-90. (32 p., 8°).

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

T. B. PETERSON & BROS. will send on application to every bookseller and newsdealer in the United States a complete list of the books issued in their new twenty-five cent series with terms and net prices for the same.

THE Aldine Club-house, at 20-Lafayette Place, was opened informally on the 10th inst., on which day a luncheon was spread for the members and their guests. This club-house in a few years will no doubt rank as the finest in New York.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish in the fall a novel by Jane G. Austin, entitled "Standish of Standish." It is historical in character, and will remind readers of "A Nameless Nobleman." Colonial New England furnishes the setting.

P. F. VAN EVEREN's address in his advertisement in our issue for July 13 was incorrectly given as 116 Nassau St. It ought to have been 60 Ann Street. Mr. Van Everen's name has been so long connected with Nassau Street that the mistake is readily accounted for.

THE Dunlap Society has just issued Lawrence Barrett's recent lecture on "Charlotte Cushman," with an appendix by Mr. J. N. Ireland. Mr. Henry Edwards is said to be preparing a bibliography and a list of portraits of Miss Cushman for the Society.

GEORGE O. SEILHAMER, 112 N. 12th St., Philadelphia, has nearly ready the second volume of his "History of the American Theatre," treating of the period during the Revolution and after. The last volume, which is in preparation, will treat the subject in the "Last Years of the Eighteenth Century."

MR. GEORGE R. HALM, who has made for himself quite a reputation as a designer of artistic book-covers and illustrations, has removed to his old quarters at 9 E. 17th Street, New York. He solicits orders for designing and drawing for book, magazine, cover, and all other work connected with the preparation or the publication of books, magazines, or catalogues, and offers the advantages of personal supervision.

"THE LIFE OF HARRIET BEECHER STOWE," by her son, Rev. Charles E. Stowe, is now passing through the Riverside Press and will be given to the public early in the autumn. It will be a book of peculiar personal and literary interest, and will appeal to a host of readers on both sides of the Atlantic. It is to be a handsome volume, embellished with fine portraits and other illustrations, and will be sold by Houghton, Mifflin & Co. by subscriptions.

GEYER'S REFERENCE DIRECTORY, corrected to January 1, 1889, which has recently been published, increases in value with each year. The publisher claims that every one of the 15,000 names has been verified by actual correspondence. The arrangement is geographical, and nearly five thousand places are represented. The ratings given are mostly the estimate of business acquaintances. Paper-mills especially are exhaustively treated, covering those of the United States, Canada, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and Mexico. These are classified according to goods made, and daily capacity of manufacture is given. This is the fourth issue of the Directory, and a marked improvement is noticeable from year to year.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. announce that they have arranged to publish a companion series to their Epochs of Modern History, consisting of a short series to be brought out under the general title of Epochs of American History. The series will be edited by Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart, assistant professor of history in Harvard College. The volumes will be issued separately, and each will be complete in itself, and average about 250 pages, with full marginal analysis, working bibliographies, maps, introductions, and index. The volumes thus far arranged for are "The Colonies (1492-1763)," by Reuben Gold Thwaites; secretary of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin; "Formation of the Union (1763-1829)," by Albert Bushnell Hart; and "Division and Re-Union (1829-1889)," by Woodrow Wilson, professor of history and political economy in Wesleyan University, Middletown, Ct.

NEITHER Mr. Howells nor Mr. James, with their names rung up and down and back and forth, day in and day out, for years, in every city, town, hamlet, and neighborhood of our country, has ever been able to compare editions with Zola, Daudet, or many other alien novelists; and yet America is the book-reading nation of the world! In England a novelist of the standing of Mr. Howells can take the manuscript of his latest novel to his publisher and receive in exchange for it a check for from ten hundred to fifteen hundred pounds. Even Anthony Trollope received as much as fifteen thousand dollars for a novel. It is safe to say that there is not in America a publisher (not a magazine or journal-owner) who would pay Mr. Howells the half of such a sum. In a word, we present the curious condition of a nation reading more books than any other nation in the world, and at the same time paying to its own writers of high merit the smallest incomes offered to such authors within the limits of civilization.—Maurice Thompson, in North American Review for July.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS announce among their first autumn publications: "The Industrial Progress of the Nation, consumption limited, production unlimited," by Edward Atkinson, author of "The Distribution of Products," etc.; "A Race with the Sun," a sixteen months' trip around the world, by Hon. Carter H. Harrison, of Chicago, illustrated by many full-page plates; "The Modern Chess Instructor," by W. Steinitz; "Christian Theism, its claims and sanctions," by D. B. Purington, LL.D., Vice-President of West Virginia University and Professor of Metaphysics; "To the Lions," by Alfred Church; "A Woman's War Record, 1861-1865," by Mrs. Gen. Chas. H. T. Collis; "Lectures on Russian Literature," by Ivan Panin; "The Practical Pocket Dictionary in Four Languages—English, French, German, and Italian;" and "Tales from the Korea," collected and translated by Henry N. Allen, Secretary of the Korean Legation. In the Story of the Nations series they will publish "The Story of the Hansa Towns," by Helen Zimmern; and in the Knickerbocker Nuggets, "Sesame and Lilies," by John Ruskin. "The Autobiography of Benjamin Franklin," "Tales by Heinrich Zschokke," and "Great Words from Great Americans," the latter comprising the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States, Washington's Inaugural Addresses, Lincoln's Inaugural Addresses, Lincoln's Gettysburg Address.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have in preparation "A Book About Florida," by Margaret Deland, author of "John Ward, Preacher," to be issued in a handsome octavo volume, illustrated with numerous beautiful colored plates, etchings, and vignettes in text, from designs by Louis K. Harlow, bound in decorated cloth; a fine library edition of "Ten Thousand a Year," by Samuel Warren, in three volumes, printed on extra paper from large type; a superb octavo edition of Walton and Cotton's "Complete Angler," with an interesting introduction by James Russell Lowell, who has discovered some new facts in connection with the subject, illustrated with 74 fine woodcuts, 17 plates, and some etchings; "Myth and Folk-Lore of Ireland," by Jeremiah Curtin, an original and fresh contribution to the already rich store of the folk-lore of the "Emerald Isle," extracted by the author from Gaelic sources; Dumas' "The Count of Monte Cristo," in four volumes, with eight photographs by E. H. Garrett printed in Paris; the Valois Romances by Dumas, comprising "Margaret of Valois," "Diana of Meridor, or, the lady of Monsoreau," and the "Forty-Five Guardsmen," in six volumes, with six valuable historical portraits; "The Swedish Revolution under Gustavus Vasa," an important historical work by Paul Baron Watson, author of "Marcus Aurelius Antoninus;" "The Thoughts of Marcus Aurelius" in a large-type twelvemo edition; and new octavo editions at reduced price of "Plutarch's Lives" and of "Plutarch's Essays."

GEORGE REDWAY, London, has in preparation an edition of Dr. John Anster's translation of "Faust," printed in folio, with illustrations by Mr. Frank M. Gregory.

SIMPKIN, MARSHALL & Co., Hamilton, Adams & Co., and W. Kent & Co., three large English publishing houses, have amalgamated, forming a limited liability company.

DR. NANSEN, the Arctic explorer, has made arrangements with Longmans, Green & Co. for the publication of an account of his recent Greenland expedition. The book will be ready early next spring, and will be illustrated with maps and plates.

THE SHELLEY CONCORDANCE which Mr. F. S. Ellis has in preparation is so far advanced that the author hopes to be able to get it to press next year, and have it out in 1892 for the Shelley centenary, the poet having been born on Saturday, August 4, 1792.

EDINBURGH is excited over the news that A. & C. Black, who have been established in the city as publishers about a hundred years, are going to transfer their business to London. Edinburgh has of late years grown largely as a centre of the printing trade, but to lose one of her chief publishing firms is a great blow.

MR. THOMAS READER, one of the partners in the firm of Longmans, Green & Co., has just retired. Mr. Reader entered the house in October, 1834, his father being at that time the manager of the second-hand department. After serving some years in the paper and print department, he became a partner in 1865, and has since directed that branch of the business. Mr. Reader's retirement, through failing eyesight, has awakened much regret in English book trade circles.

KEGAN PAUL, TRENCH & Co. will shortly publish the first number of a new serial devoted to the reproduction of selected works of the foremost photographers of the day. It is proposed to issue quarterly a portfolio of four photographic pictures from the negatives of "Sun Artists"—such as will tend to advance photography in the estimation of the art-loving public and obtain for it the position which it now claims. The first number of "Sun Artists" will consist of four studies by Mr. J. Gale, on imperial quarto paper, with letterpress.

SAMPSON LOW & Co. have published a work entitled "Englishmen in the French Revolution," by Mr. J. G. Alger, which is based upon much personal research among unpublished documents both at the Record Office and in Paris. Besides incorporating two articles that originally appeared in the Edinburgh Review, dealing with the early days of the Revolution and the Terror, chapters are added about the prisoners of war, the opening of Paris by the peace of Amiens, and the subsequent imprisonment of visitors in France by Napoleon. Attention has been given not only to spectators, depositions, and victims, but also to those writers who sympathized with the downfall of the ancien régime.

HAVE you read the dramatic novel, "A FALSE COUPLE"?

"A very absorbingly dramatic story of New York society life, almost every chapter ending dramatically, just as in a play. The scene, at the home of Ellen Van Courtlandt, where, after a series of exciting pleadings, the villain succeeds in breaking down her opposition to eloping, possesses an intensity of interest that holds the reader's attention to the end. The under story, 'Life in the Lower Circle,' is very amusing, and will be found as interesting as the serious parts. The scene opens at N. Y. Club, thence to Long Branch and Iron Pier, where intensely exciting episodes take place, thence to Monte Carlo, back again to New York."

"It's one of those novels to repay reading; not a dull line; and to those going to the country, it is just the novel to take along to make dull moments interesting."
